

#8
attach

CHOU, TAU-SAN

From: Pamela Weathers
T : CHOU, TAU-SAN
Subject: Re: Euphorbia
Date: Wednesday, November 04, 1998 3:00PM

Dear Dr. Chou,

We tried various regimens of hormones to get plant regeneration. The most we ever saw was callusing and greening of either that callus or of the roots. No shoots were ever observed. We are no longer working on the problem. If you would like I can FAX you the data table of what conditions were attempted and the results. Just send you FAX number.

Good luck!!

Pam Weathers

```
#####
Pamela J. Weathers                                Interdisciplinary Plant
Biology and Biotechnology                         Research Group
Worcester Polytechnic Institute                   x
100 Institute Rd.                                xxx
Worcester, MA 01609                               bioreactors
USA                                                xxxxx -----> process
Phone: 508-831-5196                               xxxxxxxx
FAX: 508-831-5936                                x
Research Web Site: http://www.wpi.edu/Academics/Depts/Bio/IPRG/index.html
#####
```

On Wed, 4 Nov 1998, CHOU, TAU-SAN wrote:

> Dear Dr. Weathers: I read your paper "Transformation of Euphorbia lathyris > by Agrobacterium rhizogenes". My question is: Did you ever recover > regenerated plants from Ri plasmid transformed root tissues? If you do, I > like to know the morphology changes of the regenerated plants? Thanks for > your help.
> Tau-San Chou
> e-mail: tchou@ballhort.com
>